morning arrested two negroes—Lewis Shelton and Robert Scott, on suspicion, in connection with the murder of Leong Tong, a Chinese, a week ago to-night in a Chinese restaurant in Second Street. On that night some negroes were ordered out of the restaurant because of disorderly conduct. They went out uttering threats, but soon returned armed with heids which the turned armed with bricks, which they threw at the Chinese occupants. One of the bricks struck Leong Tong on the head, crushing his skull and causing his death in the hospital. Shelton was identified as one of the negroes who entered the restaurant, but he says the brick that struck Tong was thrown by his brother.
